Roman Galas joined Simon & Simon in May 2021. Mr. Galas began his legal career with a 2-year clerkship in the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania, with Magistrate Judge David R. Strawbridge. And after 12 years at a Philadelphia-based litigation boutique defending businesses of all sizes across the country, including service as core national trial counsel for UPS, and regional counsel for a national elevator/escalator manufacturer, Mr. Galas shifted his focus. He now brings his unique wealth of experience and insight to bear seeking justice for injured victims of trucking crashes.

Mr. Galas has received a number of accolades from peers in the legal industry. He has been named a Pennsylvania Super Lawyers or Rising Star every year since 2013, and in 2012, was named by the Legal Intelligencer as one of 35 “Lawyers on the Fast Track” in the Commonwealth. He has authored/co-authored numerous legal articles and regularly presented continuing legal education courses.

Mr. Galas earned his J.D., cum laude, from Villanova University School of Law, and his bachelor’s degree in economics, with a management concentration, from the Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvania, where he was a teammate of his esteemed panel colleague Matthew Jenkins as a kicker for two Ivy League Championship football teams and kicking coach for a third, as well as a member of the JV basketball team.

He is proficient in Polish, and is a proud team captain of championship-winning Philadelphia Lawyers League basketball and softball teams, and recently became a three-time Ironman triathlon finisher.
